Suisun Valley offers the Splendor of Autumn for Fall Foliage Tours

Suisun Valley, CA: The splendor of autumn makes it an especially ideal time of year to travel in Suisun Valley, one of California's oldest standing viticultural and agricultural areas. A best kept secret of California, a foliage trip to Suisun Valley is one that's best suited to travelers who appreciate being away from the crowd in order to best commune with nature.

During the fall, temperatures are just a bit cooler in this eight mile long valley. Here, it's a great time enjoy Mother Nature's bounty and colorful show. Suisun Valley offers explorers a step back in time, to when life was more meaningfully connected to the earth. Far from the crowds, but within a short driving distance from surrounding urban areas, Suisun Valley offers a completely unique experience for fall foliage lovers. This is a perfect day-trip for exploring this region that experiences cooler temperatures in the lower valley (from coastal influences of San Pablo and Suisun bays), while the upper regions are usually a bit warmer.

A foliage journey into Suisun Valley has colorful images of autumn on the valley floor, wine tasting experiences in between natural discoveries, and fruit and vegetable stands loaded with a cornucopia of autumn's harvest fare that visitors love to bring back with them. Fun, family farm days are planned on weekends; during the week, the valley is a wonderful place for taking photographs, riding bicycles, and exploring all that Suisun Valley has to offer its visitors.
